

Biology 30 includes a study of the nervous system, hormones and control, reproduction and human development, cell division and classical genetics, heredity and molecular genetics, population dynamics, and populations and communities.

This course has two supervised exams and a Diploma Exam.

Print materials include twelve ADLC Assignment Booklets, one Tutorial Booklet, five tests and two supervised exams. Online includes instructions, quizzes, and assignments. There is a diploma exam for this course.

Course can be done on paper or online or a combo of both.